Bragg Moore Day celebrated Friday in Pascagoula

By NATALIE CHAMBERS

The Mississippi Press

PASCAGOULA — Bragg Moore, 54, a hometown boy turned prominent Resurrection High School educator, has affected more lives than he knows.

When Moore walks away from the school campus this month after a distinguished teaching career, he'll leave behind thousands of fond memories and an even greater number of admirers and well-wishers.

At noon Friday, Resurrection's school family — including alumni and friends — will honor their favorite educator with "Bragg Moore Day."

The daylong event will include plenty of humorous, well-deserved and heart-felt sendoffs, friends say.

Moore has devoted 30 years of his life to enriching the minds of area students, a task that he did not take lightly, said Gail Feidt, technology coordinator at Resurrection.

"We're having a whole day for him. He is the school. He is the rock of the school. He is the one who knows every single thing about this school," Feidt said. "He impacts the lives of even the seventh-graders who do not interact with him in class. He does the morning devotion. There is not a student at Resurrection who doesn't know Mr. Moore."

Moore graduated from the Pascagoula campus in 1969 and then was affectionately tagged "Mr. Everything," Feidt said.

Over the past year, he has streamlined duties to teaching religion part-time to seniors at the school. He is the Diocese of Biloxi's full-time youth director and has even served as coach.

Callie Thames, an eighth-grade student, has known Moore since she began first grade at Resurrection.

"He taught my sister (Katie) when she went there. He is very nice. He helps everybody if they need help. He is always positive. I have never seen him get mad or at anybody. He is very kind and always willing to do something to help others," said Callie, who was surprised and somewhat sad to learn of Moore's imminent retirement. "It's going to be different not to see him next year."

Following Hurricane Katrina on Aug. 29, much of Pascagoula was left a devastated wasteland. Moore took the task of uplifting everyone's spir-

BRAGG MOORE DAY

• Noon — Mass at Our Lady of Victories Church on Convent Avenue. It will be followed with a picnic on school grounds. Students, alumni and family are invited.

• 2 p.m. — Students of Resurrection High School will pay tribute to Bragg Moore during a roast in his honor.

• 6 p.m. — Resurrection PTO will host a block party outside the school gym on Watts Avenue.

it, according to Callie.

"He helped me keep positive. He really didn't show any signs of upset whenever he got back. His house got messed up, too," she said.

Andrea Hill, a graduating senior, is a member of the last Resurrection class that Moore will teach.

"He is a really good teacher. He teaches about giving and helping others who are less fortunate. He helped set up a fund for buying baby cribs for children in China. He also helped with the Angel Tree in Singing River Mall in Gautier. He helped get the school a lot of money," Andrea said.

After the Hurricane Katrina's negative impact, Moore remained upbeat, she said.

"You never knew that it affected him or anything. I would like him to know he has made me think more about helping others," said Andrea, who plans to study pre-medicine this fall at the University of Mississippi.

Moore's retirement, she said, will be "a terrible loss."

Attorney Eddie Williams of Pascagoula is Moore's brother-in-law, former school mate and close friend.

"Bragg and I have always enjoyed an excellent relationship. We were best friends from the time we started first grade at OLV school and all the way to the 12th grade. Then he made a foolish mistake and went to Mississippi State University and I, of course, chose a better road and went to Ole Miss," Williams said.

Williams said when Moore completed his physical education studies at MSU — Moore's lifelong aspiration was to coach — there was no coaching job available.

Moore returned to his former job at Pugh's Florist in Pascagoula and waited several years before a coaching position became available. The job was at OLV, later renamed Resurrection.

"Bragg is somebody I've always greatly admired. I remember in high school, he was voted 'Most Likely to Succeed.' If I had to pick a classmate, that in my opinion, succeeded in what he wanted to do and was happy with it, it was Bragg. He would do things that weren't that remunerative but he did it from his heart and was totally dedicated. Bragg has a marvelous ability to relate to children. That has always been one of his finer qualities — to get kids to open up and motivate kids to do things. You couldn't ask for a fellow more dedicated in working with children than Bragg Moore," Williams said.

Moore will celebrate a 55th birthday on July 17.

Williams and Moore's sister, Kathleen, have been married for 32 years.

"He will be missed on campus by faculty, staff and students. It won't be the same in a lot of ways. You get to where you identify certain people with the school and Bragg is one of those folks you identify as a kind of institution over there," Williams said.

"I don't think of (retirement) as a bad thing. I think of it as a good thing for him to finally be able to move on to other endeavors, but he will be sorely missed," Williams said.

I completed my daughter's D.A.R. paper and they went on to Washington & she is and has been a D.A.R. member for several months. The paper went through with no mistakes - they were not sent back at all for any correction in the least. I do feel very happy and proud because it is the first and only thing I ever made and entrance papers and they do have to be correct as they put professional genealogist to work on them for the most be absolutely true - they are correct in every detail. I had 4 wonderful old family bible records for dates and all - old tombstone records - and war records. it really was a big undertaking for me but I enjoyed every minute of it I can assure you. I love the work - but sometimes you feel like you can not ever find what you are looking for and then suddenly there you are, some lead was open up quite a wonderful lot of something good.

I believe when you find that one missing link - then you will have your line complete except for some dates. which of course you would need for D.A.R. - and proof.
I am not trying for P.A.R.
we feel I shall not have been enough for such - ands are getting to old to be active in the work of D.A.R., &
